C. S. Lewis

Dear Frits:

Your note of the 21st pricks my conscience.

I am going to make a maximum effort to prepare the material so that we can use our time together in Copenhagen before, and perhaps after the Stockholm Congress, to clear up this unfinished task.

I certainly do not think this is an unlovely child, and I am most apologetic that I have hindered its delivery. I am relieved that you have some appreciation of the distractions that were responsible.

Yours
